FILING REQUIREMENTS

You do not have to file a Form 1700 in any quarter if you are a "newly subject" employer. Employers who have been in business for less than 2 years and have not yet been "experience rated" under UI law are considered "newly subject."

If you are not "newly subject":

- You must file a Form 1700 for the January - March calendar quarter every year even if your average employee count is less than six.
- You must file a Form 1700 for any quarter in which your average employee count is six or more.

Filings with an average employee count of less than six (6) must have Items 1, 2A and 9 completed as appropriate. Do not pay contribution.

Filings with an average employee count of six (6) or greater must have Items 1 through 6 and 8 and 9 completed appropriately.

Answer Item 2A of the Form 1700 appropriately. Do not leave blank. If in doubt, answer "Yes".

Filings must be submitted to the Post Office Box address indicated on the front of the Form 1700.

Employers must file a Form 1700 and pay contributions in full by the quarter due date to avoid interest and penalties. Although the Division of Unemployment Assistance will make every effort to mail an Unemployment Health Insurance quarterly contribution report Form 1700-HI to employers, failure to receive a report does not relieve employers of the responsibility for filing the report and paying UHI contribution due.

OTHER FILING INFORMATION

Interest will accrue on unpaid principal at the rate of 12 percent per year from the quarter due date until fully paid.

A late filer penalty may be assessed at 10 percent of the contribution due, up to $100, but not less than $25, for each Unemployment Health Insurance quarterly contribution report Form 1700-HI filed late.

This may be the only notice you receive pertaining to quarterly filing requirements and the interest and penalties charged for failure to file when you are required to do so.
